IRONIC GAMES

Hundreds of people took part in a quirky style competition in Berlin on Saturday in which they faced off to hurl pairs of horn-rimmed glasses the farthest and to design the best vintage mustache. The second annual Hipster Olympics, staged again in Berlin, both celebrated and mocked the subculture.

In one contest, brightly clad teams of three to five tried their luck at tug-of-war, substituting skinny jeans for a rope, while another offbeat task entailed bobbing for bubble tea pearls.

Athletic disciplines tapped into current fads, with one contest forcing competitors to race across a course on top of crates of a popular carbonated drink. By why tell you about it when we can just show you the pictures? REUTERS; GETTY IMAGES PHOTOS

'Call Me Maybe' has dirty secret

Stephen Markley

redeye@tribune.com

We already know the song of summer is Canuck pop sensation Carly Rae Jepsen's "Call Me Maybe," and that's why approximately nine months from this April, the spring of the "Call Me Maybe" baby will begin.

Though I have no social science research on this—no hard data, no double-blind studies, nothing—I am a keen observer of the human condition, and through my assessment of this summer I've determined this infectious pop ditty has led to an alarming spike in the number of young women giving their numbers to men they've only just met.

While on its surface "Call Me Maybe" sounds like an effort to hearken back to one's first teenage crush, to a simpler sexual epoch in life when the most stomach-quivering, loin-tingling encounter would be a lightly copped feel in the back of one's mother's minivan, we must all understand that this song does not play for teenagers. It plays for us, the jaded, drunken masses at bars and parties who long ago lost interest in the nervous thrill of a phone number exchanged between coy and attractive people.

"Here's my number/ So call me maybe" does not denote a flirtatious, irresistibly precious moment of youthful connection as it might have at a middle school dance we once attended during the Clinton administration.

We've seen too many cutaway scenes in films where that exchange turns, with a minimum of effort, into wall-slumping, clothes-shredding PG-13 sex that everyone in the audience except for the lamest of moms wishes had gone for the R (and you know those moms kind of want to see a chiseled, Channing Tatum-quality butt; trust me, I know moms, and it takes like half a glass of wine to get them to admit as much). Thus the song's very innocence in an age of explicit, hyper-sexual hip-hop acts as a surreptitious gateway through which our horny inner demons escape.

Because the previous line—"I just met you/ And this is craaaaaazy"—Dear God, people, do you know what "craaaaaazy" means to the prodigal Millennial generation that got bored learning about the sexual revolution in history class and spends most of its time underemployed, screwed by an age of scarcity and drinking ourselves stupid in angsty fury?

It means condomless three-ways with our second cousins in the room, stuffed animal crush-porn broadcast over Skype, and live-Tweeted orgies with ex-girlfriends, their current boyfriends and some British guy who bought us shots.

It means bisexual hide-and-go-seek, oral sex Russian roulette, body-fluid slip-n-slides and naked re-enactments of Confederate prison camps. Forget dogs and cats living together—they'll be our sister wives by the time "Call Me Maybe" falls off the charts.

A spike in out-of-wedlock children nine months from now (whom I demand be called the "Call Me Maybe Babies") will be the least of Focus on the Family's problems.

The song momentarily removes from women the societally advantageous inhibition about approaching men, which in turn removes the thin veneer of respectability that men maintain only to separate ourselves from feces-hurling apes.

Which, incidentally, is another spiking sexual activity for which we can surely blame Carly Rae Jepsen.

UNITED IN GRIEF

'THE COUNTRY IS THINKING OF YOU,' PRESIDENT TELLS COMMUNITY IN MOURNING

Tribune news services

Despair all around him, President Obama on Sunday offered hugs, tears and the nation's sympathy to survivors of the Aurora, Colo., shooting rampage and to families whose loved ones were killed or wounded. He found hope in the heartbreak, insisting a brighter day will come.

In dramatic detail, Obama offered a glimpse inside the horror that took place in the Denver-area movie theater early Friday, when 12 moviegoers were shot dead and another 58 wounded, relaying a story he said spoke to the courage of young Americans. With two fingers pressed to his own neck, Obama recalled how one woman saved the life of a friend who had been shot by keeping pressure on a vein that had "started spurting blood" and later helping carry her to safety.

Behind closed doors, Obama visited one by one with hurting families gathered at a hospital and patients recovering in intensive care. He emerged before the TV cameras and kept his focus on the lives and dreams of the fallen and the survivors, not the shooting suspect or his "evil act."

"I come to them not so much as president as I do as a father and as a husband," Obama told reporters after his visits. "The reason stories like this have such an impact on us is because we could all understand what it would

TRIBUNE NEWSPAPERS

The man accused of opening fire inside the theater left a trail of evidence that police say suggests the shooting was part of a calculated plan that included killing anyone who tried to learn more about him in the aftermath of the attack.

James E. Holmes was arrested in a parking lot behind the cinema. He was armed with a Smith & Wesson M&P .223 semi-automatic rifle, similar to an AR-15 assault rifle, a 12-gauge shotgun and a Glock .40-caliber handgun.

Police found an additional Glock .40-caliber handgun in his car. All the weapons had been bought legally in the previous 60 days.

Holmes received a high volume of deliveries over the past four months to both his home and work addresses, which police believe begins to explain how he got his hands on some of the materials used in the attack and those found at his apartment, Aurora Police Chief Daniel Oates said.

Authorities have said little about what they believe was the motive of suspect Holmes, though investigators say there is evidence that planning was under way for months beforehand.

Holmes, 24, is being held in connection with the shootings at the Century Aurora 16 multiplex and the subsequent discovery of his booby-trapped apartment. He is scheduled to appear in court Monday.

"What we're seeing here is evidence of, I think, some calculation and deliberation," Oates said.

Colorado Gov. John Hickenlooper told

CNN's "State of the Union" on Sunday that he spent a day going from hospital to hospital, talking with survivors.

He concluded that Holmes was a person who wanted to terrorize and instill fear in people's lives, but said he can't conceive of a motive.

"This is a deeply troubled, twisted, delusional person," he said.

One survivor, Josh Nowlan, sustained gunshot wounds, but said he is happy just to be alive. He wouldn't be, he said, if the suspect's weapon had not malfunctioned.

"I know I wouldn't be here. If that gun did not jam, I am full certain that I probably would not be here," he said from his hospital bed Saturday.

Inside the suspect's apartment

Los Angeles Times

The apartment of the suspect in the Colorado theater rampage was decorated with Batman items and crisscrossed with waist-high trip wires attached to more than 30 improvised grenades strewn across the living room floor, a law enforcement official close to the case said Sunday. Nearby were 10 gallons of gasoline "to enhance the thermal effect."

Investigators who served search warrants Saturday at James E. Holmes' 850-square-foot, third-floor apartment in a rundown section of Aurora "found a Batman poster on a wall, a Batman mask and other Batman paraphernalia," according to the official, who has not been identified because of the sensitivity of the case.

The design and placement of the improvised explosive devices "seemed to mirror a chaotic state of mind," the official said. "There was a level of sophistication to it all. It will be interesting to see what a post-mortem forensic analysis determines regarding the chemicals, powders and devices rigged up in there, and whether the firing train would have actually functioned."

The apartment was earlier described as a death trap, designed to kill police or other first-responders.

Meanwhile, Holmes is expected to make his first appearance Monday in a court case that appears so clear-cut that at least one expert said the legal machinations could come down to one straightforward question:

If he's convicted, does the suspect deserve the death penalty?

Sam Kamin, a law professor at the University of Denver, predicts that as the case moves forward, points of dispute between the prosecution and the defense will revolve less on the question of what Holmes did or did not do on Friday morning, and more on his state of mind at the time.

"The evidence of his guilt is pretty strong," Kamin said. "The ... case for death is strong. So the question becomes, what is the case for mitigation?"

"My prayers and deepest sympathies are with the victims and their families of this horrific act."

Will Peterson's trial begin?

Jury selection set to start Monday, but petition could force delay

Chicago Tribune

After two years of delays brought on by appeals over hearsay evidence, jury selection is scheduled to begin Monday for Drew Peterson's murder trial.

But there is a possibility that the same lingering issue—whether the jury can hear some hearsay statements—could lead to the trial once again being delayed if prosecutors seek relief from a higher court, attorneys involved in the case said.

The chance that such an effort would succeed is remote, experts said.

But prosecutors argue that the hearsay statements are important to allow Peterson's wives to speak. Peterson, a former Bolingbrook police sergeant, is charged with murder in the 2004 drowning death of his third wife, Kathleen Savio, in her bathtub. He is the sole suspect in the disappearance of his fourth wife, Stacy, but has not been charged.

Jurors could hear some hearsay statements Stacy made to others before she vanished—including that she saw Peterson arrive home dressed in black carrying a bag of women's clothing around the time of Savio's death—but others previously were barred. A judge ruled that a pastor who counseled Stacy cannot testify that Peterson told her he had killed Savio, then struck her on the head to make it look like an accident. The pastor also cannot testify Peterson told Stacy what to tell police so the slaying would be "the perfect crime."

tually ruled on whether reliability issues preclude the statements from being heard, there is nothing yet for prosecutors to appeal. The state could seek the extreme remedy of asking the Illinois Supreme Court to order Burmila to issue his ruling before the trial begins.

Defense attorney Richard Kling, who teaches evidence at Chicago-Kent College of Law, said he saw little chance for a delay to the start of the trial, even if prosecutors are able to get the higher court to intervene.

“The lawyers would love to know ahead of time what a judge is going to do, but the judge can't really rule until they see the context of the statements,” Kling said. “I don't think the appellate court would touch [a motion by prosecutors to force Burmila to rule], and I don't think [Burmila] is going to stay the trial if they try.”

Opening statements in the trial are expected to begin July 31.

Israel's fear: Chemical arms

6 WASHINGTON The "great threat" to Israel from the Syrian conflict is that the Damascus government may collapse and its stock of chemical weapons and missiles fall into the hands of the Lebanese Islamist group Hezbollah, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Sunday.

Interviewed on "Fox News Sunday," Netanyahu said Syrian President Bashar al-Assad's government would fall, but he was more concerned about a chaotic "regime collapse" that would leave Syria's weapons sites unguarded than a regime change.

"We certainly don't want to be exposed to chemical weapons falling into the hands of Hezbollah or some other terror groups. ... It's a great threat," he said.

"We will have to consider our action. Do

I seek action? No. Do I preclude it? No," Netanyahu said when asked whether Israel would act alone or prefer the U.S. to take the lead.

Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.) said that in addition to the Israeli concerns, there was a risk that the Syrian government might use chemical weapons against its opponents.

"These are helicopter gunships, tanks, artillery that are slaughtering people, and now there is a risk—and I'm not saying it is going to happen—a risk that in his desperation, Bashar al-Assad might use those chemical weapons," McCain, the 2008 Republican presidential nominee, said on CNN's "State of the Union with Candy Crowley."

King of Pop's mother missing—or is she?

Some family members of Michael Jackson have filed a missing persons report concerning the late pop star's mother, claiming they cannot find her and worry for her health.

The L.A. County Sheriff's Department got the report Saturday night at the Malibu-Lost Hills station and is investigating. Officials said they believe Katherine Jackson is with other family members but want to talk to her.

An attorney for the Jackson children said they have not seen Katherine Jackson since July 15 and are concerned about her health.

Jermaine Jackson went on Twitter to say that his mother is fine. "I want to reassure everyone (inc all sudden medical experts) that Mother is fine but is resting up in AZ on the orders of a doctor, not us."

Experts surprised to discover fat burning effect in Raspberry Ketones

(Canoga Park, CA) In recent scientific studies, researchers have found that raspberry ketones affect the metabolism by increasing the release of two hormones, norepinephrine and adiponectin. Norepinephrine causes the body's temperature to rise which burns more fat. Adiponectin has direct control over your metabolism. When there are high levels of adiponectin, the cells are consistently releasing rather than storing fat. Simply put, thinner people have larger amounts while obese people have significantly lower levels.

Research and Development

Unfortunately, it takes an extremely large amount of raspberries to produce the required amount of ketones necessary to promote weight loss so the chemists at SimplePure Nutrition went to work. Using only natural, high quality ingredients, they developed a proprietary formula specifically designed to create the perfect metabolic balance ideal for weight loss. At press time their manufacturers were working overtime to meet demand for their free* trial offer.

"It's a miracle fat burner in a bottle" - Dr. Oz

SimplePure offers Free Bottle

With the exception of TV's Dr. Oz declaring that Raspberry Ketones were the "miracle fat burner in a bottle", the news about this recent discovery has been limited. SimplePure Nutrition is offering a free bottle of Raspberry Ketones so consumers can see the amazing effects for themselves.

“Ron’s life was never about the lows. It was always about the highs.”

— Vicki Santo, referring to her late husband

Wrapping our heads around a wild sports weekend

This weekend was full of ups and downs in sports, from the celebration of one legend’s legacy to the further dilution of another. Meanwhile, the Bulls are on the verge of revamping their roster—no use sitting on their hands while Derrick Rose heals, right? TRIBUNE CONTRIBUTED

IN Ron Santo

On Sunday in Cooperstown, N.Y., Ron Santo’s family and friends—along with thousands of Cubs fans who considered him a friend even if they never met him—came to pay tribute to one of the toughest men to ever play baseball.

With former Cincinnati shortstop Barry Larkin also being inducted, fans in blue and red filled the hillside behind the Clark Sports Center awaiting the Hall of Fame ceremony.

Only one thing was missing.

Because Santo died of complications from bladder cancer in December 2010, after a lifelong battle with Type 1 diabetes that caused him to have both of his legs amputated late in his life, the posthumous induction was certain to be a bittersweet event for many.

But in her acceptance speech, Vicki Santo, Ron’s widow, spoke of it as a joyous occasion.

“It was a spectacular journey fraught with trials and tribulations, incredible lows and highs,” she said. “Ron’s life was never about the lows. It was always about the highs.”

OUT Penn State football

The removal of Joe Paterno’s statue is just the beginning. Penn State’s football program and the school will be handed “corrective and punitive measures” by the NCAA on Monday. A high-ranking NCAA source said, “I’ve never seen anything like it,” according to CBS News. ESPN reported the penalties will include deep scholarship cuts and loss of bowl eligibility for many years.

IN Nazr Mohammed

We hope you’re not too attached to center Omer Asik, because the Bulls this weekend were finalizing negotiations with veteran center and Chicago native Mohammed, league sources confirmed. Mohammed, 34, averaged 2.7 points and 2.7 rebounds per game last season with Oklahoma City.

OUT Omer Asik

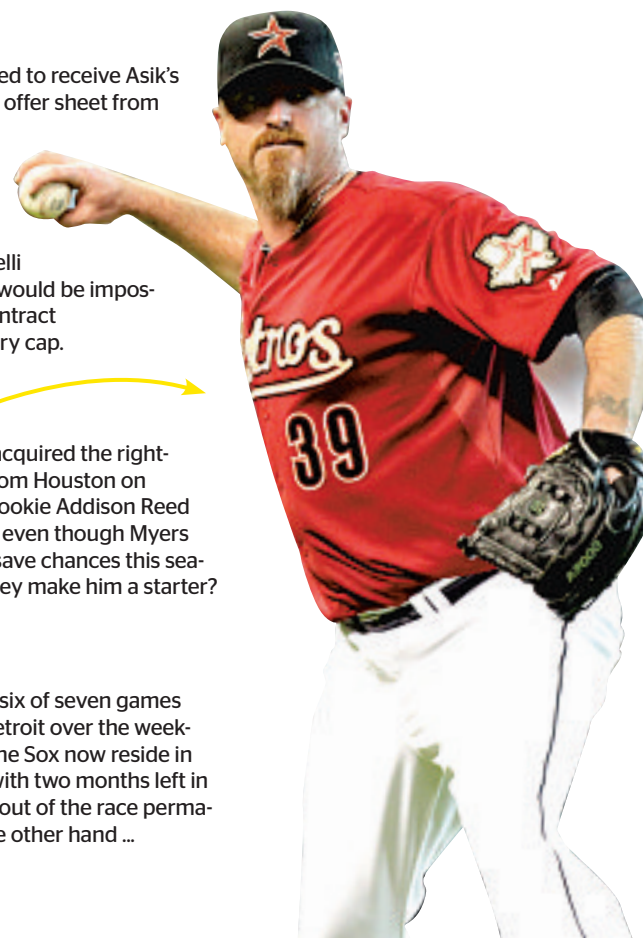

The Bulls were scheduled to receive Asik’s three-year, $25.1 million offer sheet from Houston at their Vegas Summer League finale Sunday. But if Kirk Hinrich signs for $3 million to $4 million and guard Marco Belinelli signs for $1.9 million, it would be impossible to match Asik’s contract and stay under the salary cap.

IN Brett Myers

The White Sox quietly acquired the right-handed relief pitcher from Houston on Saturday. The Sox say rookie Addison Reed will remain their closer, even though Myers has converted 19 of 21 save chances this season. In that case, can they make him a starter?

OUT White Sox

The team has dropped six of seven games after being swept by Detroit over the weekend. The worst part is the Sox now reside in second place, though with two months left in the season, they’re not out of the race permanently. The Cubs, on the other hand ...

1 What does Derrick Rose mean when he says, "Don't worry about me"?

"My knee will be frozen in carbonite a la Han Solo from now until October."

He's basically saying, "Keep my name out of your mouth until I get back, fools." #KING

It's obviously code for "I'll never play again"! My Chicago sports paranoia says so!

"Stop bringing over flowers, ice cream and 'The Notebook,' Silvy."

What's to worry about when you've added Vlad Radmanovic and Nazr Mohammed?

2 Jim Thome passed Sammy Sosa on the all-time home run list. Discuss.

The wind generated from their strikeouts could have broken our dependency on oil, but hey, who's counting?

Big Country! Can't wait until he's a Sox coach.

Knowing that Thome wanted to be a Cub and they passed is a sore subject. Next question.

Sosa is still miles ahead in looking like the love child of Eddie Munster and Michael Jackson.

Who's whiter these days? Discuss.

3 Besides Tim Tebow, who could use the advice of an L.A.-based throwing guru?

Not nearly as many people as would use the advice of an L.A.-based throwing-up guru.

Me, so he can teach me how to get paid as a "throwing guru." Is that like a "social media ninja"?

Me. Those L.A. guys never seem to have a problem making passes ... at the ladies.

Don't know if he needs it, but it sounds like Matt Garza will soon be working with L.A.-based throwing gurus ...

All NFL players. Throw away your keys and take a limo.

4 Who would be an ideal jersey sponsor for an NBA team?

For the Heat: Dunkin' Donuts. For the Bulls: Northwestern Memorial Hospital.

So many joke options here ... paternity tests, bankruptcy lawyers, white women ...

U-Haul would be perfect for the Brooklyn—formerly New Jersey—Nets.

Uber limo and taxi service, with the number on their jerseys so Jason Kidd and Co. might stop getting DULs.

Miami Heat = SAG. NBA's home for acting and drama. Will also catch eye of Miami's old women crowd.

5 What should the winner of the British Open get?

A free ticket out of Lancashire, England.

Wait, is this the tennis one or the golf one? Either way, the answer is a monster truck.

One of the best things the Brits export to the States: A complete set of "Doctor Who" Blu-rays!

A year's worth of fish and chips and a date with Pippa.

An autographed Adam Scott noose. Choke!

PRINCE HOLDS COURT

It's been a rough road recently, both for guard Epiphanny Prince and the Chicago Sky, as Prince's broken foot forces her to sit on the sidelines while her team struggles. As she prepares to return, however, Prince gives RedEye an exclusive look at her journey back to health.

Week 4: On her own—for now

It's my second week off crutches and I don't miss them. Without an obvious injury, most people aren't as likely to focus on it when talking to me. I'd rather think about more positive things anyway.

This week [Sky coach] Pokey [Chatman] called off practices so everyone is getting some downtime. Maybe not Swin [Cash] and Sylvia [Fowles], as they are playing for Team USA in London, but the rest of us have all had a week off of basketball.

Of course I don't get to take a week off of rehab, so it's still work for me. The good news is I can do it almost anywhere. I flew out to New York to see family and friends and have been training at Velocity Sports while I'm here. Besides all the walking in the pool, I've started doing toe raises, calf raises, and single leg balancing on my right leg to get it back to full strength.

I've also started doing some physical therapy, and I swear I wouldn't wish it on my worst enemies. It hurts.

Our first game after the break is at home on Aug. 17. That's my goal. We play Atlanta and I want to be on the floor.

The Sky's Epiphanny Prince hopes to return from a broken foot Aug. 17.

Starting Five

The to-do list for sports fans this week.

By Chris Sosa

REDEYE

» redeyesports@tribune.com

ATTEND White Sox vs. Minnesota

Monday-Wednesday, U.S. Cellular Field

The Sox are slipping, so they'll need a boost from this three-game home stand to try and catch Detroit. It also will be new addition Brett Myers' first appearance at the Cell in a Sox uniform. OK, so that isn't all that exciting, but he might be the first of several new additions by GM Kenny Williams ...

ATTEND Bears training camp

2:30 p.m. Thursday, Olivet Nazarene University

This requires driving to Bourbonnais, but it might be worth it to see how Matt Forte, Jay Cutler and Brian Urlacher are healing, watch Brandon Marshall make ridiculous catches and maybe snag an autograph or two. No word on whether Cutler is accepting wedding gifts.

ATTEND Cubs vs. St. Louis

1:20 p.m. Friday, Wrigley Field

This will make it easier to forget how painful the Cubs' season has been. Friday is Ron Santo Day, and the Cubs will honor the recent Hall of Fame inductee with a special pregame ceremony featuring members of his family. The first 10,000 fans receive a commemorative Santo Hall of Fame plaque, which might be the next best thing to a World Series trophy replica.

WATCH London Olympics opening ceremonies

6:30 p.m. Friday, NBC

Finally, all the controversies about Team USA's uniforms not being made in the U.S., sprinters tying at the Olympic Trials and which American men's hoops team is best will be set aside when the Games get under way. All right, so there's no chance of that happening. It's nice to know actual competition is around the corner, however.

ATTEND Big Ten Network 10K

7:30 a.m. Saturday, Soldier Field parking lots

It's too late to participate in this race, but if you're getting college football fever, this might satisfy it for now. The Big Ten Network will hold a tailgate party during the race, and former NFL players Howard Griffith, Dhani Jones, Ki-Jana Carter and Ron Dayne are running in the event, which benefits the American Cancer Society. Get the deets at btbig10k.com.

THE DIGIT 22,181

That was the announced attendance at Sunday's soccer match at Wrigley Field, in which Italian squad AS Roma downed Polish club Zagłębie Lubin 4-0. It was the first soccer game at the Friendly Confines since 1984.

THE MOUTHWATCH

“They were long days. I was so tired. I'd wake up and fall asleep again. All of a sudden I'd realize it was nighttime and I wasn't hungry because I'd feel sick. I'd try to open the window and the light hits you and you realize it's not good.”

Carly, maybe

She's got the song of summer—and RedEye's ear

By Amanda Boleman

REDEYE

With a huge smile and playful attitude, “Call Me Maybe” singer Carly Rae Jepsen took the stage Thursday at Charter One Pavilion to a crowd of screaming fans belting out the lyrics stuck in everyone’s heads this summer.

“Hey I just met you/And this is crazy/But here’s my number/So call me, maybe?”

As the No. 1 single on Billboard’s Hot 100 chart for the past five weeks, “Call Me Maybe” has been dubbed the song of summer 2012 and has launched Jepsen—with her tiny frame, big blue eyes and girlish giggle—to international stardom.

RedEye caught up with the 26-year-old Canadian artist backstage to find out about her rise to fame, her first full-length album scheduled for release in September and whether the guy from “Call Me Maybe” ever actually called.

This has been a wild and crazy year for you. What has been your most surreal moment so far?

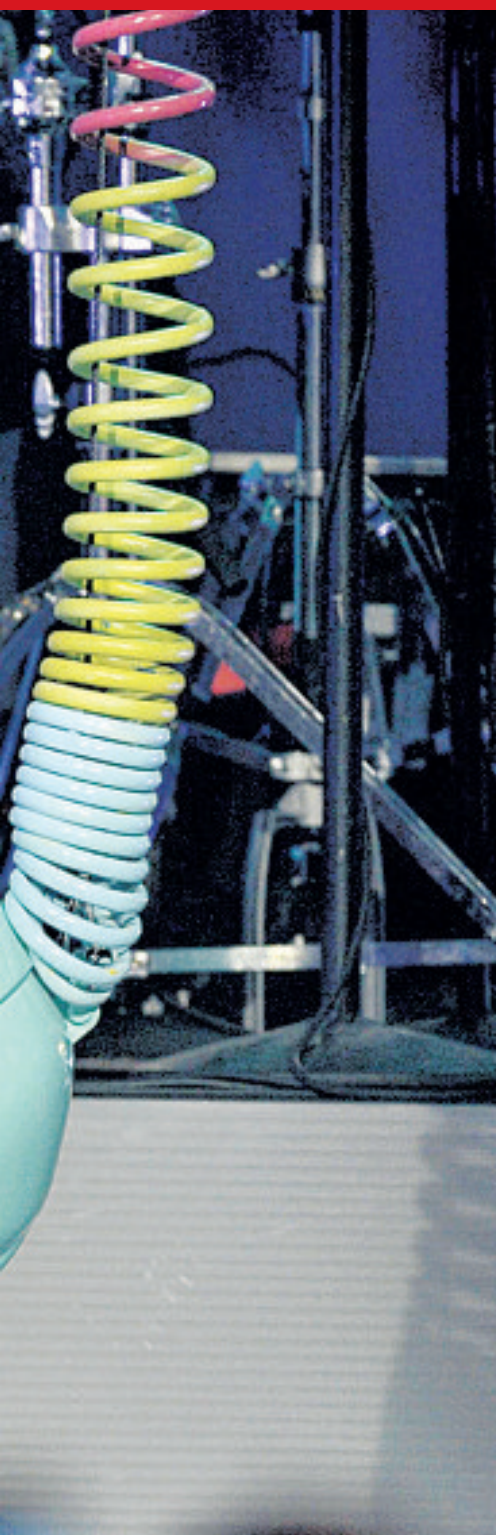

I would have to say Mexico City took the cake. I was playing a show there with Justin Bieber and there were 300,000 people in the audience, which is A LOT of people. [Giggles.] But every day does feel like a moment where I could pinch myself. It’s all so good.

Have you ever been to Chicago before, or is this your first time here?

I have been to Chicago, but I haven’t properly explored it yet. It’s been like, here for a day and then gone the next. This visit is a little bit the same as that actually, but hopefully I can come and do a satisfying week here and really take in the city.

You’re obviously not a one-hit wonder; your new song “Good Time” with Owl City is already getting a lot of attention. However, what is your favorite one-hit wonder of all time?

[Laughs.] Oh my gosh, that's a funny question. I haven't really thought about it to be honest. What would you say is yours?

I think some "Ice Ice Baby" is always good.
[Giggles.] I agree with you then.

I'm sure you've seen all of these spoofs and covers of "Call Me Maybe," especially Cookie Monster. What Cookie Monster song would you want to cover, and how would you put your own spin on it?

I'm not too familiar with his material, but I am a big fan.

Maybe some "C is for Cookie," Carly Rae Jepsen-style? "C is for Carly"?

No, so cute. Oh my gosh, should we totally do that?

I think so!

I actually love that idea.

Your first full-length album is coming out in September. Can you tell us a little bit about that? I've heard about a collaboration with LMFAO?

Yeah, actually. I look back on how the whole CD was made and the people that I met along the way and I don't think I could have had that happen twice. It has a lot to do with timing and fate. Like I met Redfoo at the airport. I was getting kind of mobbed and his security men and him came over and saved me, and that's how we met. Then we wrote a song together because we really hit it off. Him, Matthew Koma, Dallas Austin, Toby Gad, who else ... there's definitely people I'm forgetting—Cory Enemy. I've been very lucky with the people that have taken interest in the project and the collaborations we've made together. I feel really excited about.

Are you guys just finishing and wrapping it up? Almost ready to go?

Yeah, actually today while I was getting ready to come here I did my first real listen-through and I'm really, really excited. I think there's a couple songs here and there that we have to tie up some loose ends, but we're in the homestretch.

What song are you most looking forward to getting out there and sharing?

There's a song called "This Kiss" that I think I'm looking forward to sharing the most.

You're definitely bringing the bang trend back. You actually inspired mine! Do you have any other beauty tips and tricks for summer?

I can't really say that I do. I'm still enjoying discovering more designers and getting to play dress-up in a bigger way than I ever have before. I'm new to this world, but I'm enjoying it very much.

And I have to ask ... did the guy from "Call Me Maybe" ever call?

[Laughs.] Well if you've seen the video, he's not actually even into girls. But that song was actually inspired by the guy that I was dating and it just ended up being one of those things where I never actually asked a guy for his number and I thought that's one place where in music you can kind of live vicariously through your imagination and your braver self and that's sort of what happened.

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You're not sure if you can trust your partner. Maybe he's been staring at your girlfriend's boobs too much. The moon says you have reason to be cautious. Keep investigating.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

The moon is encouraging you to get a little crazy. Sometimes you're far too conservative in the bedroom. Be more inventive and creative with your touch. And talk with your honey about what really turns you on.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

Someone is all over you right now, and you're not sure if you like it. Maybe that sexy girl you had a crush on turned out to be dumber than a box of rocks. Oops.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

That certain someone you've been involved with might want to go more public with your relationship. You're not thrilled. Maybe your girlfriend is hinting to her parents that the two of you are engaged, but you're not. Put a stop to the rumors.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

A bouncy moon has you in the mood to try everything. You'll be tempted to spend intimate evenings with people who will most likely horrify you the next morning. Rein it in a little.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You're used to keeping certain information to yourself, but Pluto might change this. Maybe you'll decide to be more open with your partner about your sexual past. Good.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You'll make more promises than you can keep as optimistic Mars puts you in a positive mood. You'll flirt with three people and lead them into thinking you're dating them exclusively.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

Certain things are unacceptable to you, and right now somebody is crossing the line. If your lover insists on an open relationship, this could be a deal breaker.

Aries March 21-April 19

A moon opposition has you convinced that the world is full of snakes and con artists, and you've been dating loads of them. Don't let that paranoia go too far. Maybe your last girlfriend wasn't a total psychopath.

Taurus April 20-May 20

Your friends are telling you to create a new online dating profile and start meeting people. Pluto has turned you into a reclusive hermit. You just want to stay at home with a vat of ice cream.

Gemini May 21-June 21

Venus is waving her magic wand at you, and you could end up having a giddy flirtation that fills you with weird, hopeful feelings. What if this person is your soul mate? Is such a thing possible? Maybe.

Cancer June 22-July 22

You're more thin-skinned than ever, courtesy of emotional Neptune. If your boyfriend asks what's for dinner, you'll start crying because, well, just because.

Rain? There's an app for that

Tribune Newspapers

If this summer's drought has you obsessed with rain forecasts, if you want to know whether to water or hope that Mother Nature will do it for you or if you just need to decide between having the wedding caterers set the tables up indoors or out, you may want to check out Raindropping, a new app that provides hyper-specific, hyper-local rain forecasts.

The app uses a combination of weather data and geolocation information to tell you exactly when it is likely to rain, or stop raining, within about .6 miles of your location within the next six hours.

Raindropping also can send push notifications to your phone if rain is on its way. You decide if you want it to alert you 15 minutes in advance or up to 5 hours and 45 minutes in advance.

It lets users animate a storm's trajectory, so you can see what kind of weather is heading your way. And it can send customizable rain information to users' family and friends via Facebook, Twitter, text or email.

The app is available on the iTunes App Store for free. Raindropping Pro—the ad-free version—costs 99 cents.

The app covers the continental U.S., parts of Canada, and parts of northern Mexico and the Caribbean.

One thing it can't do though—actually make it rain.

Shia LaBeouf

Shia LaBeouf is back in town—and this time the Transformers aren't ripping up the place

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

• lgomez@tribune.com
• @aboutluisgomez

I knew Shia LaBeouf had been spotted around Chicago multiple times early last week, but I couldn't figure out exactly why the "Transformers" star was here—until I happened to pass him on my way home late Wednesday, that is.

LaBeouf came walking out of the alley between the City Soles shoe store and the now-closed Skewerz restaurant in Wicker Park. What he was doing in the alley, I'm not sure. But there was a smaller-than-usual film crew and a single police officer facing him across the street, outside of North Community Bank.

LaBeouf was there to film "The Necessary Death of Charlie Countryman," according to a woman holding a walkie-talkie. In the movie, Charlie Countryman (LaBeouf) falls for the same woman as a violent crime boss, but refuses to back off.

The 26-year-old actor, who filmed "Transformers: Dark of the Moon" in Chicago in 2010 and "Eagle Eye" in the city in 2007, spent much of the time sitting on the front step leading up to an apartment next to City Soles. There was no security next to him. It was just him sitting alone, holding what looked like a bottle in a paper bag.

LaBeouf also filmed outside of Europa Books in the Gold Coast earlier that day for about an hour and a half. He walked into the store during the scene.

On July 15, LaBeouf was spotted talking to musicians and hanging out on the dance floor at Underground Wonder Bar in River North. He stopped by Haberdash Men's Shop, also in River North, on Tuesday, but did not purchase anything.

A crying shame

If you thought all the men reduced to tears on this season of "Bachelorette," which wrapped up with Sunday's finale, were weird, so did the bachelorette herself. "I think I just made it worse," Emily Maynard told Esquire. "You would think, as a mom, I should be good at that. But I just wasn't."

“Once you have the baby and find the right person, it really is the best and you say, ‘Man, why didn’t I do this a lot sooner?’”

—Vince Vaughn, in an interview on "Windy City Live" that airs Monday on ABC7

JAN. 6

That's when the fur will fly between Shirley MacLaine's character and Maggie Smith's Dowager Countess when "Downton Abbey" returns to PBS. One sample exchange—Martha Levinson (MacLaine): "Oh dear, I'm afraid the war has made older women of us both." Dowager: "I wouldn't say that, but I keep out of the sun."

THE DIGIT

That's how many songs Beck will release on the soundtrack to a video game called "Sound Shapes," nme.com reports. The tracks, titled "Cities," "Touch the People" and "Spiral Staircase," will be featured on different levels of the game, which is due out Aug. 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Idol

First he was an "American Idol," now Mount Prospect native Lee DeWyze, 26, is a husband. DeWyze and Jonna Walsh tied the knot Saturday before a bout 100 guests in Camarillo, Calif., people.com reports. "It was really our style of wedding," DeWyze said. "Outdoors with chandeliers."

Snooki
GETTY IMAGES

SHE GETS IT

Snooki says she understands now why people used to get "annoyed" with her drunken behavior in her pre-pregnancy days documented on "Jersey Shore" and its spinoff, "Snooki & Jwoww." "It's definitely cool to watch your friends be drunken idiots—you're like, 'Wow, I used to act like that,'" she told The Hollywood Reporter last week. "So now I understand why people were annoyed with me. Because we're crazy."
